HIGH CONSTABLE'S SALE.

An injunction was granted by Judge Ingram, of the Law and Equity Court, yesterday, restraining until November 23 the Richmond Forgings Corporation from removing certain permanent buildings located on Belle Isle.

The action was brought by the Old Dominion Iron and Nails Works, which since 1573 has owned the island of forty-six acres in fee simple, having on it a forging plant for making mails, railroad spikes and other iron and seel products. The Old Dominion Iron and Nail Works leased to the Richmond Forgings Corporation some time ago a certain lot of land on the island with certain water power rights, and on that land the company erected buildings and conducted its business. Recently the company enlarged its operations and purchased a large tract of ground at Acca Station, on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, west of the city, and transferred its shops. The owners of the island objected to the removal of certain permanent buildings, and on their application, Judge Ingram yesterday issued the following temporary injunction:

On reading the verified bill in this cause, it is ordered that until November 23, 1310, the Richmond Forgings Corporation, its directors, officers, employes and contractors, be, and they are hereby enjoined from removing or attempting to remove the buildings or permanent improvements constructed by said Richmond Forgings Corporation upon the property of the complainant, the Old Dominion Iron and Nail Works Company, or in any way interfering with the same.

Bond was furnished by the Old Dominion Company in the sum of $1,000 to confirmed.
